Introduction

This is the sixth Annual Report prepared and disseminated by the Judicial Conduct Board pursuant to the directive of Article V, §18(a)(6) of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The Judicial Conduct Board is the first tier in Pennsylvania’s two-tiered judicial disciplinary system and as such, the Board is required to investigate and, where appropriate, prosecute allegations of judicial misconduct. The Court of Judicial Discipline is responsible for determining whether or not misconduct has occurred and, when necessary, imposing the appropriate sanction.

The Board and the Court of Judicial Discipline are the successors to the Judicial Inquiry and Review Board. From 1968 until 1993, the Judicial Inquiry and Review Board served as the Commonwealth’s primary judicial disciplinary organ.

JURISDICTION

The Judicial Conduct Board is required to investigate complaints against Pennsylvania judicial officers including Supreme Court Justices, Judges of the Superior and Commonwealth Courts, Common Pleas Court Judges, District Justices, Philadelphia Municipal Court Judges, Philadelphia Traffic Court Judges, and Pittsburgh City Magistrates. The Board cannot consider complaints against federal judges, or administrative law judges.

The Board has the constitutional authority to consider a complaint, from any source, that a judicial officer has engaged in ethical misconduct or has a mental or physical disability which substantially impairs the performance of judicial duties.

INTERNAL ADMINISTRATION

The Judicial Conduct Board held eight regularly scheduled meetings during 2000. In addition, there were four special meetings held via teleconference.

As an independent agency, the Board administers its own budget and staff. For the Fiscal Year 2000-2001, the Board’s budget is $929,000. The budget allocations may be summarized as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Personnel</td>
<td>$665,400</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Operating Expenses</td>
<td>$284,600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fixed Assets</td>
<td>$9,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TOTAL</td>
<td>$959,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Throughout 2000 the Board maintained its full complement of personnel. The staff includes eight full-time employees. Vincent J. Quinn serves as Chief Counsel and supervises the other staff members.
PROCEDURES

The Board initiates investigations based on information received from any reliable source including anonymous contacts, media reports, and referrals from other agencies. Most investigations are based on complaints received from named individuals. A complaint from a named individual must be verified and state the allegations upon which it is based, together with the name of the judicial officer against whom it is made. In all other cases where the Board receives information raising an issue of judicial misconduct, after receiving Board approval, a written complaint is filed by Chief Counsel.

All complaints are referred to Chief Counsel who reviews the allegations of the complaint. In the rare circumstance where it is clear that the complaint refers to conduct by someone who is clearly not within the jurisdiction of the Board, Chief Counsel will advise the complainant of this fact and refer the party to the appropriate agency. All other complaints are docketed and the complainant is advised of a file number which should be used in future correspondence.

After a complaint is docketed, the Board, through its staff, conducts a preliminary inquiry. If necessary, the staff will obtain additional information from the complainant, attorneys involved in the underlying litigation, and other individuals who may have relevant information. Frequently, staff will obtain documents such as trial transcripts, docket entries, and other court records.

Upon completion of the preliminary inquiry, counsel submits the complaint and a report, which may include a recommendation, for the Board’s review. At this stage, the Board may dismiss the complaint because it is without merit, direct further preliminary inquiry, or authorize a full investigation.

A clear majority of the complaints docketed by the Board are dismissed following the preliminary inquiry. Many dismissals occur at this stage because the complaint:

- Is obviously frivolous or proved so after a preliminary inquiry;
- Represents an effort by a disappointed litigant to obtain review of the merits of a judicial officer’s decision;
- Is based on a misunderstanding of the judicial process or the proper role of the judicial officer.

A judicial officer is usually not aware of a complaint during a preliminary inquiry. Therefore, the general rule is that the judicial officer is not notified when a complaint is dismissed at this stage. An exception to this practice occurs when the complaint is a matter of common knowledge within the community or if the judicial officer is otherwise aware of the complaint. In those limited circumstances, the Board will notify the judicial officer of the dismissal.

If the Board believes that the complaint is of arguable merit, it will proceed with a full investigation. The purpose of a full investigation is to determine if probable cause exists to believe there is clear and convincing evidence of ethical misconduct which warrants discipline.

Following authorization of a full investigation, counsel will promptly send a Notice of Full Investigation to the judicial officer. The Notice of Full Investigation notifies the judicial officer of the existence and nature of the complaint and advises the jurist of the right to respond fully to the allegations.

During a full investigation, the Board may issue subpoenas to compel the testimony of witnesses, the production of documents or other items of physical evidence relevant to the investigation, or the testimony of the subject of the investigation.

During 2000, the Board issued 108 investigative subpoenas for records and testimony:

- For records (duces tecum) 6
- For testimony 102

Following completion of the full investigation, the Board will either dismiss the complaint or direct counsel to file formal charges before the Court of Judicial Discipline.

If the Board elects to file formal charges, a Board Complaint is filed with the Court of Judicial Discipline. Board counsel presents the case in compliance with the rules of procedure adopted by the Court.

Complaints filed with the Board and any other statements, testimony, documents, records, or other information or evidence acquired for the Board during investigation are not matters of public information. All meetings and other proceedings of the Board are confidential. The Board may open individual matters to the public following receipt of a written waiver from the subject of the investigation. This confidentiality serves the dual purpose of preserving the anonymity of complainants to insulate them from concerns about possible retaliation and preventing damage to the reputations of innocent judicial officers who are the targets of baseless complaints.
All proceedings before the Court of Judicial Discipline are matters of public record and the general public is permitted to attend any hearings.

BOARD ACTIVITY

In 2000, the Board met eight times and held four teleconferences. During the first regularly-scheduled meeting of the year, in January, the Board elected Judge James Gardner Collins to serve as Chairman, District Justice Bob Yanich to service as Vice-Chair, and William P. Lincke to serve as secretary. In September, John W. Morris was appointed to succeed Mr. Lincke as secretary for the remainder of the year.

The Board filed formal charges in three cases in the Court of Judicial Discipline. As the year ended, two of those cases had been decided by the Court. See In re Kelly, 757 A.2d 456 and In re Callan, 762 A.2d ___. One complaint, which was filed in the last week of December, remained open as the year came to a close. In the case of a candidate for an appellate judicial office, charges were filed in 1999 but were withdrawn in 2000.

The Court of Judicial Discipline rendered decisions in six cases in 2000. See In re Larsen, 746 A.2d 108; In re Crahalla, 747 A.2d 980; In re Kelly, 757 A.2d 456; In re Miller, 759 A.2d 455; In re Melograne, 759 A.2d 475; In Re Callan, 762 A.2d ___.

Three cases decided by the Court of Judicial Discipline were affirmed by the Supreme Court on appeal: In re Cicchetti, 743 A.2d 431; In re Nakoski, 758 A.2d 1155; In re Crahalla, 762 A.2d ___.

In December, an Application to Implement Automatic Forfeiture of Judicial Office was filed by the Board in the case of a district justice who had been disbarred by the Supreme Court. That matter is still pending.
